FOREWORD

Scientific periodicals/journals are the most indispensable source of current information for R & D work. With the advancement of science and technology, scientific literature especially primary and secondary periodicals are proliferating day by day. Scientists, the world over, depend mainly on these source of information to sustain their lust for research, new discoveries and to keep themselves abreast with the current development in their respective fields of research. Periodicals are immensely helpful in avoiding duplication of research work.

In this context organization of a codified, userfriendly document for research work is highly essential. I hope, this 'RRJI Library Holdings: Serials' will definitely serve as a tool for easy retrieval of information regarding the availability of periodicals at RRJI Library. This publication will serve as a potential source for resource sharing and mutual exchange of information between research institutes and universities at national and international levels.

I am also happy to compliment all those who have rendered whole hearted support in the compilation and publication of this 'RRJI Library Holdings: Serials'.

M.R. SETHURAJ
Director of Research

ABOUT THE COMPILATION

Progress in any scientific and technological research is very much dependant upon library facilities and easy access to published literature. The most frequently used and dependable source of information is the periodicals.

Starting with a limited number of periodicals in the beginning, RRII Library at present receives 260 periodicals by subscription, exchange and gift. All the back volumes of journals procured in the library are bound and are available to users of the library. To provide ready information on the details of availability of these bound volumes of periodicals, it has been considered quite appropriate to prepare a 'RRII Library Holdings: Serials' available in the RRII Library. The periodicals upto 1995 have been included in the compilation. This holdings is edited using CDS/ISIS software package of UNESCO.

In this publication, perhaps first of its kind, the entries are arranged alphabetically by Title. Each entry gives 1. Name of the Journal 2. Publishers' name with place and country 3. ISSN 4. Periodicity 5. Starting year and 6. Holdings available with the RRII Library. Former and successor titles are also included. Merged titles, split titles etc. are incorporated wherever they occur. Volumes/issues which are not available in the RRII holdings are indicated in the last, within square brackets. Volumes not available are indicated by the volume number; issues not available in any volume are indicated by the volume number followed by the number of such issues of that volume. Lack of precise information, though very limited in number is indicated by (?).

There is a trend for proliferation of journals and other periodicals publishing scientific communication. The cost of scientific publications, especially that of the journals is on the increase to prohibitive levels. These factors stress the need for sharing of resources and a cost effective approach for access to information. To make this effective, however, similar publications should come out from other specialised/ research libraries.

In this connection we record our sincere gratitude to Dr. M.R. Sethuraj, Director of Research, RRII for giving permission to undertake this work. The guidance and encouragement given by Dr. A.O.N. Panikkar, then Director of Training, Rubber Board at every stage of this compilation is gratefully acknowledged. We are also thankful to Dr. K. Jayarathnam, Joint Director (Research), RRII for his valuable suggestion. Editing of this 'RRII Library Holdings: Serials' has materialised due to the sincere efforts and co-operation of Smt. V.R. Sujatha, Smt. N. Latha, Smt. A.S. Ajitha with timely and able assistance of Sri. Kurian K. Thomas and Sri. K.M. Sasikumar. The assistance rendered by the personnel attached to library is acknowledged. Thanks are also due to M/s 2 Creative Minds, Kottayam and M/s D.C. Offset Printers, Kottayam for design, printing and production of this publication.

Though maximum care has been taken in the preparation of this document, it is not unlikely that mistakes or inaccuracies may occur here and there. We will appreciate very much if such instances are brought to our notice.

Any suggestion for improvement is highly welcome.
